MASTER OF JUSTICE ADMINISTRATION

PREPARING FUTURE LEADERS

Justice agency administrators in North Carolina have experienced some of the greatest challenges in the past few years. The Master of Justice Administration provides a solid foundation to aid administrators of justice agencies to meet the challenges before them, and rise to meet the ever-changing needs of the justice system. Through a core of traditional justice administration courses, a focus on critical thinking, problem-based learning, and practical application, students will develop the critical skills necessary to be effective future leaders. In addition, the curriculum prepares graduates to teach at the community college and in some cases the university level.

"The MJA Program is the most personally and professionally rewarding experience of my law enforcement career. The curriculum is challenging and exacting in the development of advanced law enforcement leadership skills. The hybrid approach provides convenience, flexibility, and develops strong bonds in the law enforcement community."

– Roy E. Allen, Captain, Patrol Commander
Chatham County Sheriff's Office
